Digital and Printed Certificates

Trax Print birth certificate protection is unique and can protect both printed and digital versions of the document.

Trax Print allows a birth certificate to be digitally created as a PDF and sent electronically even via email. Because of the encrypted Trax Print QR code on the document, when scanned to verify you receive the meta data of the originally assigned document. So if someone changes the details of the digital version, they will not match the meta data.

Pre Digital Printed Certificates

For documents that were printed prior to digital scanning, the owner can apply for a permanent Trax Print QR code sticker to place onto their certificate.

After the government official validates the details of the document they use the Trax Print app to scan the QR code. They enter the details of the document including the registration number, Name, DOB, place of birth and finally the email address of the document owner. These details are now digitally locked to that code.

When the QR code is scanned again the meta data is displayed and the document can be verified against the printed version.

The owner of the document will also now be notified of every scan to ensure no one is using their ID illegally.

Adding a digital wallet version of your certificate

Trax Print also gives document owners the option to add their birth certificate to their mobile phone wallet.

A link can be supplied to the owner of the document where they can add the certificate to the built in wallet of their phone.

The wallet pass will have the same Trax QR code of their document displayed and when shown to a person they want to share their certificate with the person just scans the QR code with their Trax Print app. They will receive the digital version of the birth certificate in their registered email inbox. A notification will also be received by the document owner both via email and directly on the mobile wallet pass.

Built in security features

The wallet pass can be locked to one mobile device, and when scanned by the Trax Print app, the verified version of the certificate delivered is watermarked to ensure it is not used as an original.

Details on the birth certificate can also be redacted to protect the document owners privacy. Only certain authorised scanners can see information like parents details, where other unauthorised scanners requesting a copy of the certificate this information will be withheld.
